Posh's chest looks deflated

Victoria "Posh Spice" Beckham, 33, didn't exactly look like her usual perky self when she arrived at the Nov. 26 Dancing With the Stars finale. Dr. Anthony Youn, editor of Celebrity CosmeticSurgery .BlogSpot.com, says Posh could have just been wearing undergarments that, well, let her down. Or, if she previously had implants, she may have exchanged them for a smaller set.

That's Jess!

Did Jess plump her smile — again?

Jessica Simpson, 27, said she'd never again have her lips injected with Restylane, but on Nov. 29, her seemingly bruised and swollen pout told a different story. "Maybe she chose Juvederm this time," says Dr. Youn. Jessica's rep denies any new work.

Can Marcia move a muscle?

For a new mom, Marcia Cross, 45, looks surprisingly fresh and furrow-free. "Her forehead appears to be Botoxed to the max," says Bal Harbor, Fla., plastic surgeon Dr. Salzhauer, who adds that a possible forehead lift may have helped to more permanently weaken the star's forehead muscles.

Are Uma's eyes uneven?

Uma Thurman, 37, may have smoothed the creping around her eyes with a mix of Botox, a lower-eyelid lift and a chemical peel, claims Dr. Salzhauer — but the possible work seems only to have accentuated her slightly asymmetrical eyes!

Tara's all skin and bones!

Some people lose weight to land roles, and others, like Tara Reid, 32, lose it while performing them. Tara, who recently "filmed in the middle of nowhere," seems to have slimmed down to excess. "Once your bones start showing, it's not attractive," says celeb trainer Jim Ryno. "She needs to put on a few pounds."

Cindy's model stomach is sagging!

Supermodel and mom of two Cindy Crawford, 41, looks like she's having a bit of belly trouble — but not enough for a tummy tuck, says Dr. Youn. Instead, Thermage skin tightening or Titan infrared-light treatments could help combat her post-pregnancy looseness.
