Did they or didn't they get breast implants?

These stars look more voluptuous than ever! Have they gone under the knife to sex up their looks? Orange County-based plastic surgeon Dr. Juris Bunkis and Dr. Anthony Youn of celebritycosmeticsurgery.blogspot.com (who have not treated any of the celebrities on these pages) offer their opinions on whether these famous women have had work done.

Was Tori's nose job just the beginning?

"I've been called the Princess of Plastic Surgery," says so noTORious star Tori Spelling, 32, but she's never confessed to increasing her cleavage. "I admit to having a nose job but that's all," she says. Still, Dr. Youn says it appears as if Tori got implants to go from an A cup to a C.

Did Kimberly change her mind?

Kimberly Stewart, 26, first got implants at 18, then had them removed (and gave them to Jack Osbourne as a present!). But her cup size has suddenly exploded again. According to Dr. Youn, she "definitely appears to have had her breasts done." And he thinks she got high profile (extra round) implants.

She got slimmer but bustier

Vivica A. Fox, 41, went from a size 8 to a size 4 while filming Kill Bill in 2003, but as her body has slimmed down, her breasts look like they've gotten larger! A shadow under her right breast suggests that Vivica has gotten implants, says Dr. Bunkis.

Did surgery enhance Jessica's famous assets?

The Simpson clan visited Sydney in April to support Ashlee, who hosted the Australia MTV VMAs, but all eyes were on her big sis' body! As Jessica, 25, flew home on April 13, her breasts looked rounder than ever, prompting even more speculation that she has had a boob job. While Jessica has denied surgery rumors, Dr. Youn sees a difference: "Her breasts have moved up, most likely from an implant that added volume."
