

With her breasts bursting out of her skimpy bikini as she celebrated at a Fourth of July party at the Polaroid Beach House in Malibu, it looked as if Lindsay Lohan got more than just cake for her 20th birthday! Internet rumors swirled that Lindsay had given herself a special present by boosting her assets from a sizable C to a D-cup, and gossips whispered that she'd visited a plastic surgeon for implants at the Beverly Hills Medical Center in late May.

Her breasts do look larger, says plastic surgeon Dr. Anthony Youn of celebritysurgeryblog.com, who hasn't treated Lindsay. But in the July issue of British GQ, Lindsay says, "I like my body and I like my breasts, and, no, they are not fake." When asked about the upsizing, her rep tells In Touch that Lindsay has not had a boob job.

Lindsay's got a new man

"There are a few guys I like," Lindsay says, but it was 25-year-old Harry Morton, the owner of the Pink Taco Mexican restaurants, whom she chose to celebrate her birthday with in early July. The actress and Harry, who's previously been linked with Lindsay's rival Paris Hilton, enjoy spending quiet nights together watching DVDs and eating toffee popcorn. This isn't the first guy that Lindsay and Paris have both been interested in. Lindsay was most recently linked to Paris' ex, Stavros Niarchos.

Turn to page 45 for more on Lindsay's love life.

HER CUP SIZE CHANGED IN TWO WEEKS!

Lindsay's cleavage is always a topic of debate and these new pics fuel the fire!

MAY 25

THEY LOOK LARGER

Lindsay was rumored to have had a breast augmentation at the end of May. She kept a low profile for two weeks, but when she resurfaced on June 8, her breasts looked much bigger.

JUNE 8