

Doc Hollywood

Fans of the reality TV show Dr. 90210 are doing a double take in Rochester Hills. That's where Dr. Anthony Youn, who appeared last fall in the E! Entertainment show based on the body-enhancement trade, has opened his new practice, the Beverly Hills Plastic Surgery Centre.

So why did a star surgeon who provided volumetric face-lifts, facial reshaping and facial fat grafting to the stars set up shop in metro Detroit? Friends, family and business, Youn says. The Kalamazoo College and MSU grad honed his skills at a top plastic surgery program in Grand Rapids before hitting the road to Beverly Hills with his wife, Amy, also a doctor. He came back to start his own practice, one that would "combine Beverly Hills plastic surgery techniques with Midwest sensibilities." But even in the Midwest, television images and body enhancement go hand in hand. "Ever since the day that show aired, I've just been crazy busy," he says. "It's been nice." Jetting between the Motor City and La-La Land has offered its own bit of culture shock, obviously. Though his current customers prize cutting-edge techniques, they may not be as glitzy with their cosmetic changes as his former charges. "Out there, people didn't care if you knew they had their breasts done," Youn says. "Here, it's a different story."

— Ben Lefebvre