THEN

At the Grammys in February 2006, Madonna showed off her lean physique and a B-cup bust.

NOW

Outside her gym in London on July 21, Madonna's tight T-shirt revealed a more curvaceous shape.

Did Madonna get a BOOB JOB?

The 48-year-old sex symbol has a voluptuous new figure

She's always strived for physical perfection — from eating an extreme macrobiotic diet and following obsessive workout regimes to reportedly getting Botox and bizarre oxygen therapy.

Now, Madonna's fans are wondering if the queen of pop has gotten breast implants to maintain her sexy image.

The 48-year-old singer has admitted in the past that she'd consider plastic surgery. "Never say never," she's said. And she has even said that if she did get a nip and tuck that she'd keep it to herself. "I am not going to hold a press conference if I have plastic surgery."

Has she finally taken the plunge to fight aging and gravity? "Her breasts do seem larger than before. She looks to have gone from a B to a C and may have had a recent augmentation," says celebrity plastic surgeon Dr. Anthony Youn, who hasn't treated the star.

"It's unusual for women with such low body fat as Madonna to be a C-cup," Dr. Youn tells In Touch. But her rep says, "Madonna's breasts are the ones God blessed her with."
